£4.3million supports places of worship in Midlands

Churches can be thriving hubs for local communities.

Three churches working to establish themselves as hubs for heritage and communities are receiving funding to support their plans for vital repairs and public activities.

Our commitment to support historic places of worship to save and share their heritage continues to inform our funding approach, set out in our 10-year strategy Heritage 2033.

Robyn Llewellyn, Director of England, Midlands & East at The National Lottery Heritage Fund, said: "We are thrilled to support these churches as they embrace new purposes and preserve their important heritage.

“It's through investing in dynamic projects like these that we can ensure historic places of worship continue to be valued for generations to come."

Reawakening St Mary Magdalene, Supporting Newark's Communities

St Mary Magdalene’s towering spire dominates Newark, and its current Heritage Fund-supported project (awarded £2.7m in total) aims to rejuvenate the church as a community hub. Training and apprenticeship opportunities will help young people develop heritage skills and contribute to saving this nationally significant church.

Alongside critical roof repairs and accessibility improvements, an inclusive engagement programme developed with communities in Newark will make everyone feel welcome.

Forging the Way Forward at St Mary's Church

St Mary's in Stebbing, Essex has been awarded £1.6m for major repairs and improvements to protect the Grade I listed church and increase its use by the community.

Levelling the church's floor and replacing the kitchen, heating and electrical systems will create new opportunities for events and activities, while training for staff and volunteers will build a foundation for the church's longer-term future. A dedicated historian and an ecologist in residence will conduct research and lead engagement with visitors.

Rhoda Herbert, restoration project lead at St Mary's The Way Forward, said: "We are confident the project will see this ancient and beautiful Anglican church building sympathetically restored and become a thriving hub for the local community."

Building a New Community Hub at Holy Trinity Church, Colchester

Working in partnership, Colchester City Council and Community360 hope to transform the historical Holy Trinity Church in the heart of the city. We have awarded £147,328 in development funding, with the potential for an additional £1.7m to deliver the project.
