Credit: Hydar Dewachi.
Role
Future Heritage Leader for England, North
Hannah is an early-career heritage professional who began working in museums, heritage sites and community arts as a young producer for a heritage festival in her hometown of Bolton aged 18.

As a Learning Facilitator at Salford Museum & Art Gallery and Ordsall Hall she is a strong advocate for the power of heritage to foster connection, belonging and shared identity. She is committed to inclusion, equal access and community-led storytelling. As a freelancer, Hannah is particularly passionate about championing young people's engagement and agency within the arts and cultural sector.

Through the Future Heritage Leadership programme, Hannah hopes to contribute to strategic decision-making in heritage funding, bringing a fresh, community-centred perspective and a dedication to amplifying under-represented voices.

Hannah holds an MA in Art Gallery and Museum Studies from The University of Manchester and a BA in History from The University of Liverpool. In her spare time she enjoys baking, going to the theatre and visiting the beach with her two dogs.

Meet our other Future Heritage Leaders.